CREATIVE CORNER

My Future...

Maybe my future is a box of chocolates,
And I have a fair idea what to pick.
Maybe I'll have a taste, a little lick,
Or maybe I'll just shove it away with a kick.

My destiny is not what I choose,
but what I wish to make.
I can be a bird in the sky,
Or a fish in the drunken lake.

I would want to taste the rainbow,
And feel the sun on my skin.
Caress the cheeks of young flowers,
Their petals paper thin.

There are thorns on my path,
but I still want to become a rose.
And go fishing in the sea,
To find me.
And that's what we call Destiny!

— Meemansha Vashistha (Class X Daisy)

CREATIVE CORNER

Stars at night

The stars up high, so bright and bolds,
A million stories they have told.

They twinkle, shine, and light the night,
Guiding dreams with silver light.

If you look close, you might just find,
A star that's special of its kind.

So next time you see that sparkling light,
Remember that stars are always bright.

-Shivam Vijayvargiya (Class VII Daisy)

CREATIVE CORNER

The Banyan in my Yard

Once there was a Banyan tree,
Behind my house still and free.
Its roots dig deep, its branches spread wide,
It was valiant as a villager's pride.

But laughs when the monkeys swing,
And squirrels dart.
Its soul is nature's heart,
And lush twigs for elephants to eat.

It holds birds in its welcoming arms, making them,
comfortable to sing.
It's so grand, living from ages,
Having stories to whisper to all.

When seasons changing from earth and sky,
Weather changing from day and night.
He is still there, spending his timeless life,
While witnessing joy and pain of his life.

- Birain Vishwakarma (Class - VII Daisy)

Hostel Life

This is our hostel life;
We know it's strict and full of routines.
But staying there
Is a great experience.
With friends in the hostel,
Everything feels just right.
Following the schedule,
Brings its own fun.
When someone corrects us,
We feel sad and think it's bad.
But in the end,
We learn so much.
And the next day,
With a happy heart,
We are ready again,
For a fresh start!
